

RAINBOW

In ancient times, the world was made up of only the color gray. As time passed, people began to get quite bored of seeing only one color. Therefore, they chose one person among them and asked him to talk to the sun about this situation. One day, they sent the smartest and strongest among them to talk to the sun and, if necessary, fight to get different colors for the world. The sun and the chosen one did not agree because the sun thought that if it gave the world other colors, it would lose its own brilliance. No matter how much the Sun didn't want to, it couldn't resist the insistence of the Earthling and proposed a war. If the Earthling won the war, the Earth would become a light color during the day, and when it rained, the sun would send exactly 7 different colors to the Earth. The earthling accepted this offer for their loved ones and for themselves. As a result of this war that lasted exactly 7 years, the Earthling won the battle and sent exactly 7 different colors into the universe. These are red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo, and violet. For the Earthlings, the place they lived in was now a very beautiful place, with a bright world during the day and a colorful arrangement in the sky after every rain, which they called a rainbow. From that day on, whenever it rained, the sun kept its promise, and the earthlings continued their lives in peace under the rainbow.